Set inside the former Victoria Art Deco biscuit factory, the Belgian Chocolate Village invites visitors on a fascinating interactive discovery tour, complete with a tropical greenhouse and chocolate makers at work!

The tour layout (audio guide available in 7 languages) unveils the various stages of chocolate making, together with its uses, history, benefits, economy and diversity. A genuine ode to the senses!

The indoor tropical greenhouse set inside the museum reproduces cocoa tree growing conditions and is also planted with banana trees and various spices.

The modern, well-equipped chocolate workshop forming part of the museum tour allows you to observe artisan chocolate makers at work and hosts a variety of special workshops and "chocolate classes" (prior booking required).

The tour also features magnificent chocolate sculptures of famous Brussels monuments, including the Atomium, Basilica of the Sacred Heart and Cinquantenaire. A video explains how these masterpieces were created by internationally-renowned chocolate artists.

Wind up your gourmet tour with a visit to the shop, tasting rooms and chocolate bar on the upper floor.
