The Design Museum Brussels, established after the Atomium's acquisition of a private collection, is a space dedicated to design and its history. Since 2015, the collection of the museum, The Plastic Design Collection, exhibits the landscape of plastic in the world of design starting from the 1950s up until today. Complemented by a program of temporary exhibitions, the Design Museum Brussels also highlights other aspects of design and its impact on society and our daily life.

Through exhibitions, guided tours, workshops and lectures, the Design Museum Brussels aims to ensure that design is intelligible to one and all.
