The MIM manages a world-famous collection of musical instruments.

It is housed in the beautiful Old England building in Art Nouveau style on the Mont des Arts, home to several of the city's best museums and cultural institutions.

The museum presents a wide variety of collections, which belong to the collection of the Royal museums of Art and History, spread over four floors of exhibitions.

This is the place where you can dream away listening to music of the instruments on display. Among the masterpieces you can admire the oldest preserved saxophone known to this date, beautiful decorated Ruckers harpsichords and much more!

In addition the MIM has a concert hall, a space for workshops (for groups and by reservation only), a museum shop and a library, which houses the iconographic and audiovisual collections of the museum.
